

22 November 1954

MEMO FOR THE RECORD OF THE CLARK COMMITTEE

1. Colonel Miller went it alone today, due to McGruder's illness. Since he attended a meeting of the Hoover Commission in the morning and then a demonstration of Eastman Kodak's, the days program with ORR did not get started until afternoon.
2. Colonel Miller signed his formal request to Mr. Carey for a summation of office duties and justifications, which was forwarded. In so doing, he stated "I'll need this for my job of representing you people in a favorable light. Just this morning my boss (presumably the Admiral), had some pretty unfavorable things to say about certain phases of your operation".
3. Colonel Miller and McGruder are both of the opinion that CIA would profit from greater publicity of their DD/I accomplishments and will so recommend in their formal report. They feel this might help justify the Agency's existence in the eyes of the public.
4. In talking privately with Colonel Miller's secretary, she informed me of a private report to Hoover Commission task forces which she had seen briefly at the outset of their investigation. Among a number of "watch points" outlined for them, one in particular dealt with a report of poor morale among employees, causing considerable turnover. This in all probability explains their constant concern over employees welfare and security. Today Colonel Miller dwelt at length on this subject with ORR. Otherwise his questioning followed previous patterns to the word.

25X1A [REDACTED]

25X1A

[REDACTED] 25X1A

cc: [REDACTED]
Inspector General

010173

22 November 1954

MEMO FOR THE RECORD OF THE CLARK COMMITTEE

1. Colonel Miller went it alone today, due to McGruder's illness. Since he attended a meeting of the Hoover Commission in the morning and then a demonstration of Eastman Kodak's, the days program with ORR did not get started until afternoon.

2. Colonel Miller signed his formal request to Mr. Carey for a summation of office duties and justifications, which was forwarded. In so doing, he stated "I'll need this for my job of representing you people in a favorable light. Just this morning my boss (presumably the Admiral), had some pretty unfavorable things to say about certain phases of your operation".

3. Colonel Miller and McGruder are both of the opinion that CIA would profit from greater publicity of their DD/I accomplishments and will so recommend in their formal report. They feel this might help justify the Agency's existence in the eyes of the public.

4. In talking privately with Colonel Miller's secretary, she informed me of a private report to Hoover Commission task forces which she had seen briefly at the outset of their investigation. Among a number of "watch points" outlined for them, one in particular dealt with a report of poor morale among employees, causing considerable turnover. This in all probability explains their constant concern over employees welfare and security. Today Colonel Miller dwelt at length on this subject with ORR. Otherwise his questioning followed previous patterns to the word.

cc:

Inspector General

This document has been approved for release through the HISTORICAL REVIEW PROGRAM of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Date

5/5/92

HRP

89.2

010173